TWO GAMES FINISH!

Congratulations go out to Don Chinnery for his fine win at MERCHANT OF VENUS, beating Dan Farrow by two to three temps. Likewise to Kevin Wilson whose ORRP faction inherited the Politburo after a very nasty Health Phase decimated Mike Scott's TCC faction which had wrested control from Dave Anderson's BORG.

See pages 3 & 18 concerning our replacement game options.

BORIS'S BULLETIN BOARD

THOUGHT FOR THE MONTH: "Sometimes love is in silence." Zelazny & Lindskold in "Donnerjack"

Don Chinnery is migrating southward again. New address and phone number: 1606 Council Drive, Sun City Center FL 33573; 813-634-9119.

Tim Haffey has failed his morale check and stopped publishing "Who Do You Trust?" after three issues. Lack of sign-ups and the fact that only four (4) new postal DIP games have been registered thus far this year ("Boris XIV" as "2000C" was the 3rd) were proof enough to him to cease and desist.

Scott Morris in Louisville (see pp 18-19) sent along his zine "Flat Earth Society" which, with subzines, runs DIP, COL DIP, DIP variants, SCRABBLE, STOCKS & BONDS. Even has an opening for JUNTA.

World DipCon is in Denver next year at the Hyatt Regency Denver Tech Center and runs 16-18 February 01 as a part of GenghisCon. See <http://www.denvergamers.com> for details. Or e-mail manus@python.net to get on the e-mail list.

I did a scouting sortie to the BX today and found that they have three of the four new Avalon Hill releases, DIPLOMACY, BATTLE CRY, and ACQUIRE at $29.95 each. Can Toys-R-Us be far behind?

BOOS & KUDOS

This month's Madame Bolduc Press Excellence Award (and free issue) goes to the author of the Classified in "Boris XIV".

This month's Ms Nar Super-Sunday Bomb is lobbed at Chris Trent for lack of orders.

SPRING 1902 AGAIN

MIRKWOOD: Ron Risher has pointed out a plethora of errors we both made. First he tried to build a F ANK when there was already an A ANK. Then I let him, and further compounded things by conjuring a F BLA. Then we didn't agree what types of units he had where. Finally I assigned Russia's A GAL's retreat to A RUM. So, we're going to correct the mistakes this time. I'm calling again for orders for Fall 1902. Those on file will remain valid unless countermanded. This will also give Germany a chance to recover from Hurricane Keith, give the NMRs a reprieve, and get Roi Kanne's long press piece out of the way.

TROOP MOVEMENTS:

AUSTRIA (Boyunt): A Ser S TUR A Bul-Rum, A Tri H, F Gre H, A Bud S TUR A Bul-Rum, (A Vie-Gal);

Due next time are the retreat and orders for Fall 1902.

EMBASSY BEAT

Belgium: Baron Von Graber has reported that the German efforts to help the poor people of Pearly were stopped by selfish actions of the French. Now the world will see those fiends as they really are. They should give up while they have a chance, the Baron said. "WE will be merciful".

Good King James' advisors are assembled in the library awaiting his arrival for a conference on the state of France. The Marquis is absentmindedly catching flies and slowly removing their legs and wings. A smile flits across his face as he catches his next victim. Rear Admiral, Robert Ulysses Marcus Ponteler, sorts nervously through his note cards; stacking some to the side and putting others back into his copious files. Adam Smythe, the chief economist, clicks the beads of his abacus noting down calculations in his ledger.

The King is late having lingered in the courtyard for a game of "Ole". It being the lark of the courtiers since the recent venture into Iberia. One of the more comely damsels dons a headress with horns and dashes back and forth by a "Matador". The King has taken the cape and is playing the Matador for all it is worth. Each time the damsel dashes past he deftly removes a bit of clothing, much to the delight of the courtiers of course, who hoot and holler, and spin the damsel around and send her by again. Just as she is about to become indecent he throws the cape around her shoulders, salutes and heads off to the library. Ole!

The advisors stand and salute as he enters. "At ease Gentlemen", "RUMP would you put those cards down for a minute while we consider the situation?" "G g gladly Sir" the Admiral stammers "B b b ut, we must consider all of the options, d d d ont' you think Sir?" "Just what are we faced with as you see it me good Sirs?" the King inquires of the assembled advisors. "Well, as I see it" states the Marquis "there isn't much of a problem. All we need to do is catch a few of the forward observers of the assembled Italian and German forces. Send them to me and I'll 'extract' all the information we need." "A tad bit 'mean spirited' wouldn't you say my good man?" the King replies. "And what do you have to say for yourself Adam?" "We must have more armies and fleets before we do anything Sir. Strength in numbers I always say. All the Italians want is to 'use the facilities', we could send them our new amphibious landing craft. Port au Pottee, that should satisfy them I think. We have a fleet in the Gulf standing by to make the delivery. The Germans are bent on sending 'teachers' in for reeducation efforts of our Northern peasants. Of course what they really want is some wine to replace that horrible beer they drink. So I say we deliver a few cases to the October Fest in Munich this year." "Any more suggestions? No never mind you always have more don't you Adam." "Well RUMP what do the cards say?" "If it p p please you sir, we have very many options at our disposal. We could send envoys to each of our neighbors suing for peace. Or we could try to ally with one against the other we could try to stonewall all of them. R r really sir the p p possibilities are truly immense." "Well what I say we need" exclaims King James. "Is a good ally, one who will talk on a regular basis and coordinate attacks and defenses as we need them"

"So what am I left with here?" the King looks around the room, "RUMP has lots of options in his 'house of cards', it's 'eenie this or eenie that'" "The Marque seems bent on torture, the meanie that he is" "I want a friend to work with" "and Adam wants more, more, more."

Yes the choice is definity, Einnie, meanie, minele or mo

CONFIDENTIALS

Sounds like a wonderful idea, work together to win games. Why, that would mean there would have to be some communication, perhaps deals struck, provide support, maybe even a back stab. Sounds like it would be a wonderful, devious game. Maybe we could create one and call it diplomacy.

Get a real life. If you are not playing for fun then you need to leave the game.

WHAT NEXT?

We have three pages to fill. MERCHANT & KREMLIN have first dibs if they can fill new games immediately. Alan Barendse has expressed an interest in running SOURCE OF THE NILE here, but has only three signed up. MACHIAVELLI could take Page 3 if I got country preferences from the five signed up. We now have six for "Boris XV", one more and country preferences and we're off. Otherwise, HISTORY OF THE WORLD has 5 signed up for 6 openings and CIRCUS MAXIMUS (Yeah!) has 5 signed up, which would work with 2 charlots each (if more sign up, it'll be one charlot each, if two each, we'll use next WBC's demolition derby rules). 1856 & 1835 have a playable four signed up.

Hey guys, if we don't get some consensus as to what to play next, it may be time to fold this puppy since we won't have anything to print.

Here's the deal. We'll take three pages worth of games. "Boris XV" has priority, if it fills, for one page and a new MERCHANT would have priority for two pages. After that, it's whatever has the highest fill rates.

So, reconfirm your game druthers, send in your country or color preferences, and let's get things moving.

"We may look alike, but because I'm a clone I'm actually someone's intellectual property."

CLIFFHOME: Not much apparently happened over the past 4 years. True the Brits lost a center to their traditional rival France, and Japan reclaimed NEW from the Dutch. But hark! The Russo-Brit alliance has stopped the Islamic expansion, and may be on the verge of turning it back. The Chinese have temporarily stabilized their situation by giving a marker to the avaricious French. The Dutch are beset by the Japs, but the French lend no aid. Curious.

General Comments:

Everyone pretty much got their orders in on time. Last go-round we ended up doing a couple of iterations on calamities and expansion. To make sure that we have time for that again I am setting the deadline for the end of trading and submission of orders covering 11.10 - Trade through 12.3 - Population Expansion to 10/20 at 6PM Eastern time. That's not a lot of time for trading, but I think it should be sufficient. We have been having problems with our answering machine at home so if you have trouble reaching me there you can call me at work 703-318-4672.
